About Me

Hey there. I'm Kusito Dinote. I'm

Twenty-three years old. I am a web designer, photographer & an owner of small startup group 'KDK Graphics Work'. I'm an undergraduate student at Adama Science and Technology University. I am studying Computer Science and Engineering. I have also earned many Certificates in Programming from different organizations.

A photograph of a yellow cosmos flower in a garden setting. The flower is bright yellow with multiple petals and a visible center. It is surrounded by green foliage and other yellow flowers in the background. A solid blue rectangular box is overlaid on the right side of the image, partially obscuring the background.

MY SKILLS

Front-End Programming

I can fine tune a website's design by using my skills in front- end programming. Some of the front-end programs that I know well are Java, HTML, Python & CSS.

Designing & Photography

As a designer, knowledge in photography is a must. I have been working on this for the past few years.

Visual Skills

Just like I stated earlier, I have a keen eye for details. As a web designer, I can clear out unnecessary details on a website & make it look better.

Communication & Organizing

I can explain the details of a program very well to a client. I can also organize my work clearly to avoid any confusion.

ADAMA

Adama (Oromo: Adaamaa or Hadaamaa), officially known as Adaamaa and formerly Nazareth (Amharic: ናዝሬት), is a city in central Oromia Region, Ethiopia. Adama forms a Special Zone of Oromia and is surrounded by East Shewa Zone. It is located at an elevation of 1712 meters, 99 km southeast of Oromia's Addis Ababa. The city sits between the base of an escarpment to the west, and the Great Rift Valley to the east. The city name Adama may have been derived from the Oromo word adaamii, which means a cactus or a cactus-like tree. More specifically, adaamii means Euphorbia candelabrum, a tree of the spurge family, while hadaamii would mean Indian fig. Following World War II, Emperor Haile Selassie renamed the town after Biblical Nazareth, and this name was used for the remainder of the twentieth century. In 2000, the city officially reverted to its original Oromo language name, Adama, though "Nazareth" is still widely used. In 2000, the government moved the regional capital of Oromia from Addis Ababa to Adama, sparking considerable controversy. Critics of the move believed that the Ethiopian government wished to deemphasize Addis Ababa's location within Oromia. On the other hand, the government maintained that Addis Ababa "has been found inconvenient from the point of view of developing the language, culture and history of the Oromo people". Adama is one of the reform cities in the region and has city administration consisting of 14 urban and 4 rural kebeles. Housing the houseless people is one of the basic strategies. House is one of the basic necessities for human beings. However, it is a critical problem for thousands of poor people in Ethiopia. The Adama city condominium management system has its own administration committee to organize, control and manages the local communities. The integration of web based in condominium management service is necessary for providing housing service effectively and efficiently through a better management at all levels of office. This shifts to automation by the integration of operations using computer technologies to save record time and improving reliability of ordering and obtaining results. Adama city condominium distribution and management office is found in Adama. It is responsible to control the activities such as distributing the finished houses to resident and facilitates
